

Carly Coleman,
Martina Povolo
Project Hope

We Are the Seeds

This is not just a flower, it is the result of hard work, perseverance, and faith. The flower begins as a young seedling, vulnerable and repressed. Just as we start as young voices, unheard and unseen. The only resource that allows the seed to develop is a shower of love and attention. We are in need of such resources, so we can flourish into a spectacular flower. As we mature, our roots grow deeper and our heads are held higher. The flower's outstanding colors grab the attention of others around it. Its beauty and potential become apparent with time and faith. We are the seeds. We call on the Church to nourish us, to provide us with the resources for our growth and maturity, for our voices to be heard, and our beauty to be shown. God protects and allows us to begin a garden of such flowers, filled with love and determination to make a difference.

The
garden
has diverse
colors
and
abilities,
but we
all
grow
from
the
same
soil.

We are the seeds.
This is our garden.